INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC REPERTOIRE OF THE PIARIST ENSEMBLE FROM PODOLÍNEC

A b s t r a c t. European church archives contain, in addition to polyphonic vocal and instrumental music, also instrumental compositions bearing the names of: sinfonia, sinphonia, synfonia, synphonia, symfonia, symphonia, simphonia, sonata, duetto, trio, terzetto, trietto, quadro, quartet, octetto, divertissement, divertimento, serenada, cassatio, overture, concerto. This phenomenon applies also to church centres in Poland (e.g. Pauline monastery at Jasna Gora in Czestochowa, Dominican monastery in Gidle, Cistercian abbey in Cracow-Mogila), the archival collection of which includes a large amount of this type of music from the seventeenth and especially from the eighteenth century. The order of Scholarum Piarum, that is Piarists, active in Italy, Austria, Czech Republic, Slovakia and Poland, was also a part of this phenomenon. In the colleges of this order, located within the boundaries of the then Polish-Lithuanian Commonwealth e.g. in Lowicz, Rzeszow, Piotrkow, Zloczow, Wielun and Podolíneč, there also sounded instrumental music. The repertoire of instrumental music originating from the former monastery and Piarist College in Podolíneč, recorded in the inventories and preserved in the form of manuscripts and printing includes as follows: church sonatas, baroque violin concertos, pre-classical and classical trios, pre-classical symphonies, overtures to operas, keyboard instrument music. Instrumental pieces were used for the purposes of teaching, during recreation, in school theater performances and during the liturgy. In Podolíneč, Proper Missæ chants were probably replaced with instrumental music, as it was commonly practised in Europe in the eighteenth century.

Key words: instrumental music in seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, composers in seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, musical culture of churches and monasteries, church music, Piarists, Podolíneč.

1. A HISTORICAL BACKGROUND OF INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC IN EUROPEAN AND POLISH CHURCH CENTRES

The practice of performing instrumental music in the church centres of 17th and 18th century Polish-Lithuanian Commonwealth is documented by the preserved collections of archive records (manuscripts and printed music as well as inventories).¹ Based on that, one could conclude, that the acquisition of the repertoire with such genres of music for church ensembles was a rather common practice, and the preserved documents concerning music become a fundamental source for researching this phenomena. The practice was widespread primarily in the Catholic Church of Europe at that time. Exploration of the archives of those centres (assisted by RISM data base²) enables to acquire information and to some extent to reconstruct the view of instrumental repertoire found in church collections particularly in Germany,³ Switzerland,⁴ Austria,⁵ Czech Republic,⁶ Slovakia,⁷ and Hungary.⁸

When conducting queries in Polish church publishing assets concerning music and browsing old inventories, one can come across compositions created for various types of instruments. The names of those compositions included: sinfonia, sinphonia, synfonia, synphonia, symfonia, symphonia, simphonia, sonata, duetto, trio, terzetto, trietto, quadro, kwartet, octetto, divertissement, divertimento, serenada, cas[s]atio, uwertura, concerto. We can also find dances: polonaises, minuets, mazurkas, Cossack dances, saltus. In the collections of church documents concerning music in Poland we can also find names of the composers popular in Europe at that time. The status of the research (documents concerning music catalogued until now) enables, to a certain degree, determine the type and estimated number of instrumental works and to develop a list of their authors connected with a given church centre.

The largest collection of instrumental compositions can be found in the Pauline Monastery of Jasna Góra (Clarus Mons) in Częstochowa.⁹ According to the author¹⁰ of the catalogue of documents concerning music collected by the Dominican abbey in Gidle nearby Częstochowa, 34 symphonies have been preserved there.

The activity of Jesuits, who run a number of musical dormitories in the Commonwealth, provides the evidence of playing instrumental music. The largest preserved collection of music comes from the church in Święta Lipka.¹¹ There can be found inventories and chronicles from a large number of former Jesuit dormitories in other towns.¹²

A large collections of documents concerning music with instrumental compositions can be found in a Cistercian abbey in Cracow-Mogila,¹³ and in

"In order to make the musical heritage of the Polish people known to the widest social circles, a very precious initiative originated at the Pauline Fathers abbey in Jasna Góra and Jasna Góra Ensemble Society was established to support these efforts. Additionally, the Scientific-Editorial Committee of the Jasna Góra Musical Sources was created. It gathers a group of musicologists and musicians from the whole Poland chaired by Professor doctor habilitated Remigiusz Pośpiech. The main goal of the committee is to work out the musical sources preserved in the abbey archives and their preparation for performance, recording and publication. The Pauline Fathers abbey in Jasna Góra organizes the concerts regularly since 2003 and combines them with recordings published in the series "Jasna Góra Early Music" by Musicon, DUX and Acte Préalable publishing houses. Apart from that, they organize musicologist sessions devoted to individual composers of Jasna Góra Ensemble. Their results will be systematically published in a special imprint." Inventories from 18th century of calced Carmelites from Sąsiadowice, Lviv and Terebovlia (currently in Ukraine) mention instrumental compositions including a large number of symphonies (ca. 70).¹⁶

The symphonies were also played in the Oratorian abbey in the Holy Hill Marian sanctuary in Gostyń.¹⁷

It is interesting that instrumental music was also performed in the convents. The examples include Benedictine nuns in Sandomierz¹⁸ and Staniątki,¹⁹ as well as Clarisse nuns in Stary Sącz.²⁰

Also, in so called "Sister Dygulska Hymn Book" of ca. 1780 there are 138 anonymous secular compositions for a keyboard instrument. They are one-part compositions with a simple two-section or three-section da capo construction: dances, airs, sinfonias, sonatas, preludes, concertos, fugues, divertimentos and pieces defined by tempo, such as Andante. 2. PIARIST COLLEGES IN EUROPE IN 17TH AND 18TH CENTURIES —MUSICAL REPERTOIRE

Part of this trend of performing instrumental music in the monasteries and convents was also Piarist order,²³ founded at the beginning of 17th century in Rome by Saint Joseph Calasancius (José de Calasanz 1556–1648). The charism of this order was to establish public schools and to provide free education, in particular for children and youth from the poorest social classes. The pedagogic thought of the Piarist's founder with the main motto Pietas et Litterae (Faith and Science) is connected with his spirituality. The goal of Calasanctian schools was to prepare children and youth to acquire

²⁰ So called “Sister Fabiańska Hymn Book” of 1761 included airs (54), allemandes (3), sonatas (2), Sub Elevatione pieces (2), capriccio (1), offertorium (1), partia (1). They were edited by Rev. Prof. Jan Chwalek and published in 1994: Arie z różnych autorów zebrane anno 1767. Miniatury na organy lub klawesyn, ed. Jan CHWALEK (Lublin, 1994). The pieces were performed by Maria Erdman on clavichord and recorded on CDs: Clavischordae Aetas Aurea in Polonia: The manuscript of the St. Clare cloister in Stary Sącz, vol. 1–3 (AP0127, AP0128, AP0129), “Acte Prealable” 2006. They are sinfonies, overtures from the second half of 18th century (51), the turn of the 18th and 19th centuries (12), the first half of 19th century (12), and 2 marches from the beginning of the 20th century. a profession enabling them to find work in the future.²⁴ That was the reason why the basic curriculum, apart from religion and catechism, emphasized teaching mathematics, calligraphy, Latin and mother tongue grammar and reading. There was also an advanced curriculum preparing for university studies.²⁵ Even the first schools organized in Rome and Campi by the founder, Joseph Calasanctius himself had the groups training boys to earn their living as musicians, in particular in Rome abound with musical ensembles. It was also widely accepted in the Central Europe.²⁶

The first Piarist colleges outside Italy in 17th century were founded in Moravia and Bohemia. The most thriving centres were located in: Mikulov (Nikolsburg), Litomyšl, Kosmonosy, Strážnice, Slaný, Kroměříž (Kremsier). In the latter the Bishop of Olomouc Karl von Liechtenstein founded a musical college (1688) and entrusted the Piarists with its administration.²⁷ Later, at the beginning of 18th century, colleges in Bilá Voda (Weißwasser), Freudenthal (Bruntál) and other towns were founded.²⁸ Apart from school administration the task of the monks was teaching music. According to the principles of Regulae Magistri Chori et Musicae originated in the second half of 17th century, Piarist students cultivated primarily sacred music. It was allowed to perform music for school dramas and sonatas (mainly sacred ones). In contrast, dance music and secular songs were prohibited not to spread moral corruption.²⁹ A preserved collection of documents concerning music from Kroměříž and Lipník contains several symphonies from the last quarter of 18th century.³⁰

The first colleges in Austria were founded in Horn and in Vienna at the Church of Maria Treu.³¹ Instrumental music (including dances) in Austrian colleges was rather connected with performed school dramas.³² It is worth mentioning that Joseph Haydn had close and familiar contacts with Piarists (especially those living in Vienna).³³

Slovakian and then Hungarian Piarist colleges originated from the Polish monastery in Podolíneč³⁴ in Spiš (founded in 1642³⁵). This school, run by the Piarists over the period of 200 years, became the symbol of close Polish-Slovakian-German-Hungarian relationships.³⁶ In 1662, Provinciae Poloniae was created. It embraced monasteries in Podolíneč,³⁷ Prievidza,³⁸ Svätý Jur,³⁹ and Nitra. All of them, except for Podolíneč, were moved under the administration of the Hungarian province after it was separated from the Polish province in 1721. Podolíneč monastery was moved under the administration of Provincia Hungariae after the first Austrian Partition (1771) in 1782.⁴⁰

There is no information about documents concerning music from the Piarist monastery in Prievidza. Some idea concerning the musical reality of this college may be found in the archival inventory dated 1690.⁴¹ It includes a list of the instruments and the repertoire of the time (more than 400 catalogue items). The catalogue includes 67 records with a name of Sonatae, one of each with the names: Pastorella a 6 (2 vl, 4 vla), Balletto Smelczeri a 3, Lamento a 3, and Canzonetta a 5 as well as two Canzons which makes a total of 73 instrumental compositions (more than 18% of the whole collection). It is an interesting detail that it includes a note Sonata Polonica, [Sonata] Pragensis. Some items in the inventory have composers names: [Johann Heinrich] Schmelzer (ca. 1620/23–1680), [Antonio] Bertali (1605–1669), [Giovanni] Valentini (1682/83–1649), [Samuel] Capricornus (1628–1665), P. Damianus [Stachowicz SchP] (1658–1699), [Heinrich Ignaz] Biber (1644–1704), [Philipp Jacob] Rittler (ca. 1637–1690).⁴² There is no doubt that a comparison of Invenatorium Chori A[n]n[um]o D[omi]ni 1690 from Prievidza with two 17th century inventories from Podolíneč, allows to acquire information musical connections between these two Piarist abbeys.

Numerous 18th century musical manuscripts were preserved from the college in Svatý Jur. They are held in the State Archives in Modra.⁴³ However, up till now no research has been conducted on that collection. The scores from Piarist abbey in Svatý Jur are mixed with the documents concerning music of other provenance (for example from Podolíneč) and so far have not been separated. Therefore, it is difficult to estimate their number. A substantial part of those works were composed by father Henryk Thumar (ca. 40).⁴⁴ A small inventory of documents concerning music and musical instruments dated 1696 was preserved from this abbey. Partes scriptae section includes a record: “Sonatae 22 [pieces].”⁴⁵ Múzeum) in Bratislava, D. Mudra has reconstructed the list of Jesuit and Piarist college repertoire.⁴⁷ The documents concerning instrumental music include:

- from the Jesuit period (1765–1773) – one symphony by J. Haydn;
- from the first 25 years of Piarist period (1774–1800)—symphonies by Carl Ditters von Dittersdorf (1739–1799), Franz Anton Hoffmeister (1754–1812), sinfonias by Johannes Matthias Sperger (1750–1812), Johann Baptist Vanhal (Jan Křtitel Vaňhal 1739–1813), cassation by Anton Zimmermann (ca. 1741–1781) as well as 8 polonaises and a piano composition;
- from the period of the eminent Piarist musician and regenschori father Augustinus Šmehlík a S. Josepho Calasantio SchP (1800–1844): the collection of 671 compositions (of 120 known authors) includes as many as 339 pieces of instrumental music, represented by: a concerto (J.S. Schrotter), 3 divrtimenti (J. Haydn, A. Ivanschitz), 12 duets, a cassation (C. Ditters von Dittersdorf), 2 quartets, 2 quintets, 6 sinfonias (I. Pleyel, F.A. Rosetti, J.B. Vanhal), 16 sonatas and sonatinas (I. Pleyel), 8 symphonies (C. Ditters von Dittersdorf, J. Haydn, F.J. Navratil, V. Pichl, J.B. Vanhal), 197 dances (J. Haydn, Hladky, Wilde), 7 trios (F.A. Hoffmeister, Neumann, I. Pleyel), 33 variations (including W.A. Mozart, L. van Beethoven, J.B. Vanhal), 51 other pieces.

Instrumental music could have been partly connected with the Piarist church, where cameral music, sinfonias, and symphonies were performed in accordance with the trend of that time as an introduction to, or during the church services. Other genres of secular music (e.g. dances) could have been connected with the activity of the choir and orchestra of the Piarist gymnasium. Instrumental music was used for school theatre shows.⁴⁸

Nitra was the place of residence of the Piarist composer, father Norbertus Schreier a S. Bernardo⁴⁹ (1749–1811) who wrote sacred music but also instrumental pieces (6 symphonies, 4 trios).⁵⁰

3. MONASTERIES OF THE ORDER OF THE PIous SCHOOLS IN THE COMMONWEALTH

The Piarists came to Poland from Moravia in 1642.⁵¹ The first monasteries with schools were founded by: the King Władysław IV Vasa (1595–1648) in Warsaw, and the voivode of Cracow Voivodeship and the starost of Spiš, Stanisław Lubomirski⁵² (1583–1649) in Podoliniec.⁵³ Subsequent colleges were founded in 17th century in: Rzeszów (1657), Cracow (1664), Chełm (1667), Łowicz (1668), Piotrków Trybunalski (1674), Góra Kalwaria (1675), Radom (1684), Waręż (1688), Wieluń (1691), Łuków, and Szczuczyn Mazowiecki (1696).⁵⁴

The presence of music in Polish Piarist abbeys can be observed from the very beginning of their existence. In those days, the order was joined by musicians (it is not known whether they were educated) who taught singing and musical art.⁵⁵ The most eminent 17th century Piarist composer was Damian Stachowicz.⁵⁶

Piarist musical ensembles⁵⁷ were also created and run in Warsaw, Łowicz,⁵⁸ Rzeszów, Waręż, Piotrków, Chełm, Złoczow, and Wieluń. The fact that music was played in these abbeys is confirmed by preserved documents. In particular, the inventories of documents concerning music and instruments of the Piarist ensemble in Wieluń preserved in Liber Quietationum et Inventariorum Domus Vielunensis (for the period of 1746–1810).

⁵¹ The events of the Thirty Years' War caused that the Piarists moved from Moravia to Cracow. Cf. Hermann TÜCHLE, Historia Kościoła 1500 – 1715, vol. 3 (Warsaw, 1985), 158–163; Andrzej WYCZAŃSKI, *Historia powszechna. As far as the instrumental music is concerned, Inventarium Rerum Musicalium dated 7th September 1751 lists in Parthiae section:⁵⁹

1. Parthia ex F. Authore D. Berhaver
2. Symphonia ex D. Authore Patre Hilario
3. Overture ex F. Auth[ore] R. Adalberto Kotowski
4. Overture Authore eodem
5. Overture Authore Georgio Thiel
6. Marchae et Menuette Auth[ore] Adalberto Kossowski
7. Overture ex D. Authore Gorczycki
8. Parthia a 3. vocibus Auth[ore] D. Orschler
9. Sonata ex G. in folio Auth[ore] Lechneitner

On the other hand, Inventarium Rerum Musicalium dated 10th November 1751 includes only a general record: Symphoniae 7.⁶⁰

The symphony written by Piarist Hilary Saag and recorded as a second item would be one of the earliest Polish symphonies.

The instrumental music repertoire of the Piarist abbey in Łowicz can be deducted based on the inventories of the local collegiate church. Presumably, there was a close cooperation between those two ensembles. A general list of the symphonies is presented below.⁶¹

It is also known that in Piotrków's college students were staging theatre shows, during which a heroic dance⁶² was performed.

4. INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC REPERTOIRE OF THE PIARIST ENSEMBLE FROM PODOLÍNEC

The construction works of the college in Podolíneč⁶³ were finished in 1648, and Saint Stanislaus Bishop and Martyr Church was completed in 1651.⁶⁴ It may be supposed that music was performed from the very existence of Piarist abbey and school in Podolíneč. An inspiring factor was the educational nature of Piarists' activity, who also emphasised musical education. It is proven by the preserved 17th century inventories and documents concerning music from this centre.⁶⁵

When the college begun its operation (1648), the teaching staff in Podolíneč included musicians who served as praefectus musicae, promotor musicae, praefectus chori, procurator musicae, director chori. A teaching ⁶³ Podolíneč (Polish: Podoliniec, German: Pudlein, Hungarian: Podolin) located between Levoča Mountains and Spiš Magura, near the Poprad river, at the main road connecting Spiš with Poland and eastern part of Slovakia, has currently ca. 3.100 inhabitants and belongs to the Slovak Republic. From an administrative point of view it is in the Stará Ľubovňa District of the Prešov Region (Prešovský kraj, okres Stará Ľubovňa). Until 1772 (the First Austrian Partition) the town belonged to the Kingdom of Poland. Cf. J. LACIKA, Spisz – przewodnik turystyczny (Bratislava: Dajama, 1999), 50; CHALUPECKÝ, "Kolegium Pijarów w Podolińcu," 77; Anna NACHER, Marek STYCZYŃSKI, and Bartłomiej CISOWSKI, Spisz. Od Pienin po Raj (Kraków, 2004), 105.

⁶⁴ The construction costs of the abbey with the church and the school were fully covered by St. Lubomirski. He also obligated his heirs to pay the Piarists annually the amount necessary to maintain this foundation. The foundation stone had an inscription: Stanislaus Lubomirski Comes in Wisnicz Palatinus et generalis Capitaneus Cracoviensis Civitatum Scepusiensium Gubernator hanc et Collegium Clericorum Regularium Pauperum Matris Dei Scholarum Piarum cum fundatione liberali ad maiorem Dei gloriam promovendam, fidem catholicam propagandam, hereses in istis partibus extirpandas – sumptibus propriis erexit, dotavit, perfecit, etc. Cf. ⁶⁵ They are currently held in the State Archives in Modra near Bratislava, that has the following full name: Ministerstvo Vnútra SR Štátnej Archív v Bratislave Pobočka Modra (The Ministry of Internal Affairs of the Slovak Republic, State Archives in Bratislava, Modra Branch). roles of magister musicae or institutor musicae were often performed by the teachers of other subjects.⁶⁶

Two preserved 17th century inventories broaden the knowledge of the repertoire and instruments of the abbey ensemble. They are all the more valuable as there are not too many documents concerning music left from that period. The inventories were found and worked out by the Slovakian musicologist L. Kačic.⁶⁷ Their rich content allows to reconstruct the lists of instruments, composers, and specific genres of the works performed in the local church. Usually, it was sacred music, that is masses, vespers, psalms, litanies, Marian antiphons, concertos, and arias, but the instrumental music was also considered.

The older unfinished Inventarium Chori Podolinensis dated 1680⁶⁸ included a section Concertus de Nomine Jesu cum Syphonijs that lists the titles of 16 pieces.⁶⁹ Presumably, they were vocal and instrumental compositions in a concertato style, preceded by instrumental inserts (the titles of the other sections include for example Concertus Dominicales cum Instr[umentis]).

The newer inventory—Regestrum hoc scriptum . . . Anno 1691. . ., created in 1691–1702 includes a description of a quite considerable number of documents (manuscripts, printed scores) and instruments.⁷⁰ Among more than 700 items sorted based on the criteria of a genre and liturgical function ⁶⁷ Two inventories from Podolíneč are in the archives in Modra as part of the collection of Piarist documents concerning music from the abbeys in Svatý Jur and Podolíneč. They do not have catalogue numbers since they are part of damaged material (in Slovakian it is referred to as so called “vytrasený materiál”) held in box 62 of this asset. Cf. ⁷⁵ Caesare Pietro Francesco—such name is used by L. Kačić. However, according to the encyclopaedia Cesarius [Caesarius] Franciszek was 17th century composer, presumably a Franciscan from Cracow. A manuscript with catalogue number 5272 from the Jagiellonian Library contains his eight-voice vocal and instrumental composition Gaudeamus omnes in Domino. The inventory of Cracow's Carmelites mentions three compositions by this author: Missae duae super Stella Caeli, Missa a 6. His piece known by the title is Litania a 4. Cf. Anna SZWEYKOWSKA, "Cesarius, Caesarius, Franciszek," in Encyklopedia Muzyczna PWM, vol. cd (Kraków, 1984), 71. It is possible that it is this composer as both inventories contain litanies of the Blessed Virgin Mary (a total of four) and a sonata of this authorship.

Antonio Molli⁷⁶

item a 2 VV et B. Finica

The above compositions were orchestrated for two to six instruments, usually violins (violinos) and violas. There are also compositions for string and wind instruments (trumpets). Most frequently, they are trio sonatas. Presumably some of the pieces were canzonas (M. Mielczewski⁷⁷), and the others were sonatas da chiesa (A. Bertali, M.H. Wronowicz). It is possible that they were performed in the church during solemn liturgies, which may be indicated by the expression Sonata de Resurrectione a 3. 2 VV. et Viola. There are also other intriguing expressions used with the names of the compositions: item [sonata] a 3 Belilaqua, item [sonata] a 3 Aeroamatica, item [sonata] a 3 simul cu[m] Laudate D[omi]num o[mn]es Gentes (sonata with psalm?).

Apart from the listed individuals, the names of two important 17th-century composers are mentioned with sonatas: an Italian Antonio Bertali, working at the imperial court in Vienna as well as a Pole Marcin Mielczewski (Monogrammist MM), the royal musician of the Polish king Władysław IV Vasa, and the kapellmeister of Karol Ferdynand Vasa, the youngest brother of Władysław IV, Bishop of Wrocław and Płock.

Preserved documents concerning music from the Piarist abbey in Podolíneč (more than 200 manuscripts and 10 prints) include approximately 450 compositions.⁷⁸ They embrace 66 18th century instrumental pieces and 19 dances. However, not all documents are complete. Additionally, it has to be emphasized that the expressions used in the manuscripts (at title pages or in the parts' headers) do not reflect explicitly the form or the genre of a piece. The estimated number of instrumental compositions is as follows:

symphonies—19 (+ 1 with only a title page = 20)

⁷⁶ Antonio MOLLI, Mottetti e sinfoniae a due, tre e quattro voci... opera prima, Orvieto: R. Ruuli 1638 (RISM A/I/5 M 2976; RISM ID: 00000990041628). Cf. Nicoletta GUIDOBALDI, “Music publishing in sixteenth- and seventeenth-century Umbria,” Early Music History 1988, 8: 1–35.

⁷⁷ The musicians of the time have used the terms sonata and canzona interchangeably. Cf. PRZYBYSZEWSKA-JARMIŃSKA, Muzyka pod patronatem polskich Wazów, 355–372; Adolf CHYBIŃSKI, “Canzona instrumentalna Marcina Mielczewskiego,” in Marin Mielczewski. Studia, ed. Zygmunt M. SZWEJKOWSKI (Kraków, 1999), 219–232.

⁷⁸ Most frequently it is vocal and instrumental sacred music: masses, offertories, vespers, psalms, complines, litanies, arias. sonatas a due, sonatas a tre—24
instrumental quartet—1 pieces for piano—2
dances (saltus seu chorea)—19 (+ 3 not recorded = 22)

The collection of instrumental music in the Piarist documents concerning music from Podolíneč will be presented in the tables.⁷⁹ The first one will contain concertos (concerto). The second table is a list of 18th century index of concertos and supplements the first table. The third table includes a list of compositions referred to as symphonies in the manuscripts (here, this term includes all variants: sinfonia, symphonia, etc.). The fourth table shows all sonatas (quartets, trios, sonatas for keyboard instruments). We do not digress here whether they were actually symphonies or sonatas. A general name for a composition as well as abbreviations for instrument names and a general dating was based on RISM indication.

The columns of the tables will include the following information:

Composer—First name and surname of the composer, (supposed ones in square brackets [] based on concordance in RISM database), and years of life.

Title—Original name of a composition written on the title page or in the header. In the brackets [] there are additional information on the key, title, number in the composer's works catalogue.

Parts (Key, Meter)—names of the parts of a composition with the key and meter.

Cast—list of the instruments of an ensemble.

Copyist (Date)—Name (initials) of a scribe and the date when a copy was finished. All documents' provenance is: Piarist abbey in Podolíneč. In uncertain cases a question mark (?) was used.

Catalogue number—a catalogue number of the manuscript or print from the State Archives in Modra (Slovakia); sometimes a given item may include more than one piece.

⁷⁹ Data for the tables comes from: SMOLAREK, Katalog tematyczny muzykaliów z klasztoru piarów w Podolińcu; RISM database: <http://www.rism.info/de> (accessed 15 June 2015).

Documents concerning music from Podolíneč contain 20 concertos for solo violin composed by such masters as A. Vivaldi (3), G. Torelli (1), J. Meck (1), G.Ph. Telemann (1). An interesting rarity is the violin concerto in A major written by the Polish Piarist, Wojciech Pankiewicz—father Ferdinand a S. Caecilia SchP (1). Despite the description it is not certain if the compositions from the set with the catalogue number H-607 are concertos, as only three voices are left: two violins and organ.

The knowledge about concertos in the assets of Podolíneč Piarists is supplemented by the list of such compositions included by W. Pankiewicz at the end of the first violin part (catalogue number H-633) and entitled Regestrum seu Index omnium Concertum per Alphabetum Clavium descriptum.⁸⁰ The following table presents a summary of information taken from Regestrum. The first column shows the number in this index, and the second—the original name. The third column informs about a composer identification made by L. Kačic. The fourth column indicates a location of a piece in the preserved manuscript (with a catalogue number) where a given concerto is placed. The fifth column includes information about the authorship given by W. Pankiewicz.

In 2010, the CD Italian Concertos From Podolíneč was published in Slovakia. It was produced based on the Piarist manuscripts from Podolíneč. The compositions were performed by “Solamente naturali” ensemble directed by Miloš Valenta.⁸¹ The CD includes the following pieces:

1. P. Ferdinandus Pankiewicz a S. Caecilia SchP (1706–1773)—Concerto a 4
2. Giuseppe Torelli (1658–1709)—Concerto in F, Op. 8 No. 11
3. Tomaso Albinoni (1671–1751)—Concerto a 4 cum Clarino
4. Joseph Meck (1690–1758)—Concerto in F, Op. 1 No. 1
5. Giuseppe Matteo Alberti (1658–1751)—Concerto in C, Op. 1 No. 6
6. Antonio Vivaldi (1678–1741)—Concerto in e, RV 275
7. Georg Philipp Telemann (1681–1767)—Concerto in G, TWV 51:G8
8. Giuseppe Matteo Alberti—Concerto in F, Op. 1 No. 10
9. Antonio Vivaldi—Concerto in F, RV Anh. 130
10. Giuseppe Torelli—Concerto VI a 2 Violini, Tromba, Alto Viola, Basso Continuo.

The collection of instrumental music includes 19 symphonies and one title page without the score that was left from Symphoniae Pantominicae II (catalogue number H-617). The dating of the copies of compositions as well as the list of musicians allow to observe these pieces were written before 1780. One can find here the names of composers from the second half of 18th century who were famous in Europe at that time: K.F. Abel, J.Ch. Bach (“the London Bach”), K. Ditters von Dittersdorf, P.A. Guglielmi, or J.A. Hasse. The majority of compositions consist of three parts. Some of them are kept in abbey or university libraries in Europe in the form of numerous manuscript sources.⁸²

⁸² For example, two copies of the symphony from Podolíneč are in the Cistercian Archives in Cracow-Mogila: K.F. Abel, Symfonia Ex Dis (catalogue number H-877) and Sinfonia 6 Vox [...] Del segn. abel [...] in Año 1769 descripsit (catalogue number 926) as well as Anonymous, Symphonia in G (catalogue number H-752) and Anonymous, Symphonia ex G, 12 August 1769 (cata-

In one case, there are two copies of the same symphony; however, they are written with a different ductus. In the title page of the manuscript with catalogue number H-624 there is an inscription Synfonia. in C [...] Auct. Benedicto. | Scholar. Piaru, which may suggest the authorship of the Piarist father Benedict (P. Benedictus a Visitatione B.V.M. SchP)—Josef Weber. On the other hand, the inscription in the title page of the manuscript with catalogue number H-750 Sinfonia [...] Del Sign. Engel inclines towards a conclusion that the author of this composition is presumably a musician of Saint John Collegiate Church in Warsaw—Jan Engel. The melody, formal construction and even the cast are the same.

Three of the Podolíneč's symphonies are overtures to operas:

Johann Christian Bach's Symphoniae 2da in D (catalogue number H-621) is *Overture to opera "Artaserse;"*⁸³

Symfonia ex A cum Offertorio (catalogue numbers H-617, H-618) by Johann Adolph Hasse is *Overture to opera "Ciro riconosciuto"*⁸⁴ followed by a contrafactum of the aria “Le tue selve in abbandono” arranged for a four-voice mixed choir with a new text: In hac laeta solennitate;

Symphonia in D (catalogue number H-742), regarded as anonymous, turns out to be Overture to opera "Alessandro Severo" by Andrea Bernasconi.⁸⁵

A kind of a curiosity is a 49-bar Sympónia seu Introduzzio; Allegro preceding Kyrie from the mass Missa Solennis [in D] by Leopold Pych (catalogue number H-110, not included in the table).

There are 22 sonatas left in Podolíneč collections. They are mainly trios, but there is one quartet, one variation and a sonata for piano four-hands from the end of 18th century. A difficulty with using the terminology for instrumental compositions of the time may be found in the title page of the Violino 1 voice in the printed collection of works by Sebastian Bodinus,⁸⁶ where you can read: Musicalisches Divertissement [...] TRIO [...] bestehend aus XII SONATEN.

Undoubtedly, the collection of works gathered in Podolíneč was largely influenced by the copyist and owner, Bohemian Piarist Josef Weber (P. Benedictus a Visitatione B.V.M. SP—Father Benedict of Visitation of the Blessed Virgin Mary SchP).⁸⁷ In title pages of the copied manuscripts (not only with instrumental music), he often indicated the attachment of the scores to his collection: “Ex camera Waeberiana P[ater] B.[enedictus] SS: PP: mp.”

It has to be emphasized that the instrumental works include dances too. In one of the manuscripts (catalogue number H-791, integrated with the manuscript with catalogue number H-997), at the end of Bass voice there are 19 dances for a duo of violins 1 and 2 (Saltus seu Chorea duetto Viol. 2do Viol Imo in Canto). However, only the scores for the second violin were preserved (no scores for items 17–20, and repeated dance 8: 8 Tenze sam Taniec w [?] inaczej (“8 This same Dance in [?] differently”). The first violin was written down in Canto voice which was not preserved.

Instrumental music performances in Podolíneč college are proven by the lists of instruments and documents indicating purchases of them.⁸⁸ Instrumental music was present at Piarists in Podolíneč from the middle of the 17th century until the abbey was acquired by the Hungarian Province (in 1782). The works included the following forms:

⁸⁶ It is actually a copperplate without dating: Musicalisches Divertissement | Oder in das Gehör gerichtete | TRIO, | VIERTER THEIL, | bestehend aus | XII, SONATEN, | à Hautbois, Violinis, Flute Traversiere, | et Cembalo, ô Violoncello. | Componirt, | Von Sebastiano Bodino, | Hochfürstlich-Baden-Durlachischen | Concert-Meistern. | Und zu finden, | Bey Johann Christian Leopold, | Kunst-Verlegern in Augsburg. | Cum Privilegio Sac: Caes: Majestatis (catalogue number H-634).

- church sonatas,
- Baroque violin concertos,
- pre-Classical and Classical trios,
- pre-Classical symphonies, overtures to operas,
- music for keyboard instruments.

Instrumental music was also collected for pedagogical purpose (e.g. Versuch einer gründlichen Violinschule, by L. Mozart). Making music aimed at making the life more pleasant during recreation.⁸⁹ Such pieces were used for school theatre shows (for example dances).⁹⁰ The names of some compositions suggest that they were performed during the liturgy, for example Symfonia ex A cum Offertorio by J.A. Hasse (catalogue numbers H-617, H-618) or Sympónia seu Introduzzio; Allegro preceding Kyrie from the mass Missa Solemnis [in D major] by Leopold Pych (catalogue number H-110). Presumably, in Podolíneč, just as it became a practice in 18th century Europe, singing of Proprium Missae was substituted with instrumental music, pieces for organ, intradas of wind ensembles or sonatas and parts of symphonies. In particular, it concerned Graduale and Offertorium.⁹¹

REPERTUAR MUZYKI INSTRUMENTALNEJ
KAPELI PIJARÓW Z PODOLIŃCA

Streszczenie

Europejskie archiwa kościelne zawierają oprócz utworów wielogłosowej muzyki wokalno-instrumentalnej również utwory instrumentalne noszące nazwę: sinfonia, sinphonia, synfonia, synphonie, symfonia, sympnoia, simphonia, sonata, duetto, trio, terzetto, trietto, quadro, kwartet, octetto, divertissement, divertimento, serenada, cassatio, uverture, concerto. Ta sytuacja dotyczy także kościelnych ośrodków w Polsce (m.in. klasztoru paulinów na Jasnej Górze w Częstochowie, klasztoru dominikanów w Gidlech, opactwa cystersów w Krakowie-Mogile), których zasoby archiwalne zawierają sporą liczbę tego rodzaju muzyki pochodzącej z XVII, a zwłaszcza z XVIII wieku. W ten fenomen wpisuje się zakon Szkół Pobożnych, czyli pijarów, który swoją działalnością objął Włochy, Austrię, Czechy, Słowację i Polskę. W kolegiach tego zakonu, znajdujących się w granicach ówczesnej Rzeczypospolitej, również rozbrzmiewała muzyka instrumentalna, m.in. w Łowiczu, Rzeszowie, Piotrkowie, Złoczowie, Wieluniu oraz Podolińcu. Repertuar muzyki instrumentalnej pochodzący z byłego klasztoru i kolegium pijarów w Podolińcu, zanotowany w inwentarzach oraz zachowany w postaci rękopisów i druku, obejmuje: sonaty kościelne, barokowe koncerty skrzypcowe, tria przedklasyczne i klasyczne, symfonie przedklasyczne, увертуры do oper, utwory na instrumenty klawiszowe. Utwory instrumentalne wykorzystywano w celach pedagogicznych, podczas rekreacji, do szkolnych przedstawień teatralnych, były również wykonywane podczas liturgii. Prawdopodobnie w Podolińcu, tak jak to było ówczesną praktyką w Europie w XVIII wieku, zastępowano śpiewy Proprium Missae muzyką instrumentalną.

Słowa kluczowe: muzyka instrumentalna XVII i XVIII w., kompozytorzy XVII i XVIII w., kultura muzyczna kościołów i klasztorów, muzyka kościelna, pijarzy, Podoliniec.
